

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

KANGAROO MEETING

"Are the little ones all in bed?" asked one of the Kangaroo mothers of the others. She had just jumped over to where the others were.

"They're safely asleep at last," the mothers said. "Now we can have a little quiet talk."

"Dear me, what a day it has been," said the first mother. "I've been asked questions until I thought I would jump away and not answer any more."

"I May Look Funny."

"I've been asked why was this and why was that. Well, of course, I suppose we should be thankful to be asked these questions."

"If they didn't ask us questions we'd feel they didn't think we knew anything. After all, it is rather a compliment to be thought so wise. And often we don't know as much as they think, poor little dears."

The mother Kangaroos were sitting about on their long hind legs. They were not sewing, for they had no sewing to do. They weren't mending their children's clothes, as their children didn't wear the kinds of coats or stockings which had to be mended.

In fact the Kangaroo mothers had a very easy time of it. And they didn't do fancywork or embroidery for the sake of "having something to do," because it would be a waste of time when they didn't know what to do with the embroidery if they did any, nor what to do with the sewing if they wanted to sew!

"I heard a mother at the zoo today telling of the way some of her children were complained of because of the noise they made and because they ran about and got in people's way," she said.

"Then she saw me and she said: 'Look at that funny creature. And do see it jump!'"

"Ah, if she had understood Kangaroo talk I would have said to her: 'I may look funny and I do make funny jumps. But I could give you a point or two about children when they run about too much or when they make a noise or when the landlord or the next-door neighbor complains. Just gather them together and put them in your pouch. That is what Mother Kangaroo does.'"

"But she, probably wouldn't have taken my advice. People feel they are so superior. Perhaps she hasn't a pouch, but then she should admire the way I'm built instead of calling me funny looking."

"She should admire us," the others said.

"Perhaps they really envy us," the first Mrs. Kangaroo remarked. And they all jumped about and agreed that that was probably the explanation.

"A dear little Kangaroo child is not strong at first, and I always feel it is safest to carry any baby of mine in my pouch until he is quite able and strong enough to look out for himself. I don't think he is strong enough for a good many months to be allowed about by himself and I don't run any risks."

"Of course, maybe people don't run risks, but there is nothing so safe as a good old pouch."

"I remember in the olden days how gentle we all were. Then we used to be hunted and we became wild, which is only natural, I'm sure."

"We have sharp claws and our hind legs are good and strong and can run fast."

"But we are nice creatures, and though some laugh at us when they see us, we think their ways are as funny as they think ours are."

"We love grasses and vegetables, though our teeth are strong—such teeth as we have for we haven't a great many."

And so the Kangaroos met and talked about things they all knew and expressed thoughts they had often expressed before.

But who can blame them for that? Not even Kangaroos want new things to talk about all the time. Once in a while, perhaps, but they liked to go over the same things about which they all so well agreed!

Making the Best of It

After trying unsuccessfully to open the door of the pantry, where the cakes were, the small boy turned to his brother and said:

"It's no use, Tommy. Not one of those keys will fit."

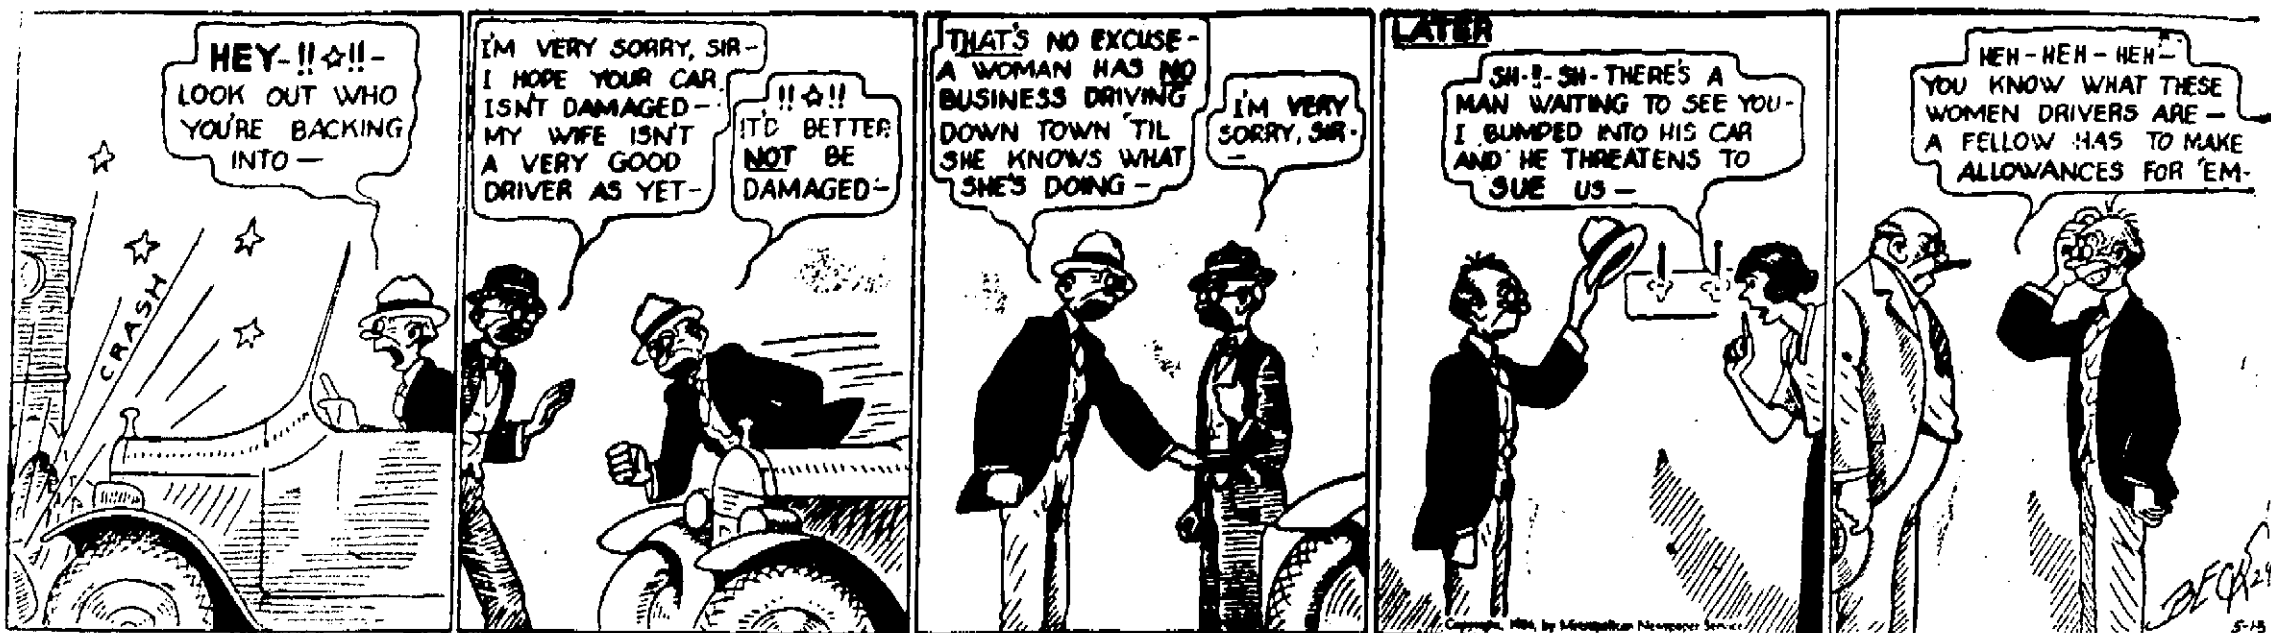

"All right, then," said Tommy, resignedly. "We'll wait until mother comes home and ask for something for being good boys."

SUMMERY DISHES

Light desserts and simple combinations of fruits are most acceptable during the late spring and early summer months.

Bavarian Prune Cream.—Remove the stones and cut up cooked prunes into bits. To one cupful of minced prunes add some of the juice. Soften one-third of a package of gelatin in one-third of a cupful of cold water; dissolve in a little of the heated prune juice, add one-fourth of a cupful of orange or grapefruit marmalade, the juice of half a lemon and two-thirds of a cupful of sugar; stir until the mixture is dissolved, then set into ice water and stir occasionally until the mixture begins to set, then fold in one cupful and a half of beaten cream and the pieces of prunes.

Tomato Jelly.—Boil a pint of strained tomato ten minutes with one-eighth of a teaspoonful of clove, a pinch of ginger, mace, allspice, mustard, a slice of onion and a sprig of parsley. Strain, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and one envelope of gelatin. Stir until cool, then arrange in a mould with cooked green peas. Letting the jelly set after each layer so that the peas will be scattered through the jelly.

Hot Sardines.—Drain sardines and heat in a hot frying pan, serve on fingers of buttered toast and garnish the serving dish with lemon quarters.

Drop Doughnuts.—Take one egg, separate the yolk and white and beat the white until stiff. Add one cupful of sugar to the egg white, then add the beaten yolk, a grating of lemon peel and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of ginger, one-half cupful of milk, a little salt, one and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Drop by teaspoonfuls in hot fat. This recipe makes two dozen small cakes.

Mayonnaise.—Beat one whole egg until light, then pour on gradually a pint of salad oil, beating well after each addition of oil. It will take about five minutes. Add lemon juice, salt and onion juice if liked, with a few dashes of cayenne. It will keep indefinitely in the icebox.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

MANITOBA.

The first step toward the formation of the Province of Manitoba was taken by the Dominion government 54 years ago today, May 12, 1870, but, owing to the insurrection of the Metis of half-breeds led by Louis Riel, the province was not duly constituted until the following July, when Adams G. Archibald assumed his duties as lieutenant governor. Manitoba was carved out of what had previously been known as Rupert's Land, or the Red River Settlement, which had been a part of the domain of the Hudson Bay Company until its purchase by Canada in 1869. At the time of its admission to the dominion the Prairie Province had a population of only 18,000, largely Indians and half-breeds. Many of the troops from eastern Canada, sent to suppress the Riel rebellion, settled in the new province, and within ten years the population had increased to 62,000. The second Riel war and a disastrous boom stopped Manitoba's progress for a little while, but it soon recovered. Emigrants from the United States, the eastern provinces and Europe brought the population to 254,000 in 1901, and to 455,614, while Winnipeg, from a frontier village, was transformed into a metropolis of 136,035 progressive people.

HENRY CABOT LODGE

Henry Cabot Lodge, who has been a member of Congress since 1887, and United States Senator from Massachusetts for thirty-one years, was born in Boston seventy-four years ago today. The distinguished literary Solon from the old Bay State was named after his mother's father, Henry Cabot. The neighborhood in which he was born contained the residences of a host of famous families, including Rufus Choate, George Bancroft, Edward Everett, Daniel Webster, the Frothinghams, Loes, Bowditches, Bigelows, Higginsons and many other personages and clans whose names figure large in Boston history. Young Henry Cabot Lodge was taught to read and write by a Mrs. Parkman, who was a descendant of John Eliot, the apostle to the Indians. Afterward, quite as a matter of course, he went to Harvard, where he acquired the degrees of A. B., LL. B. and Ph.D. He was famed as an editor of reviews and an author of books long before he entered politics. He began his public service as a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1880, and in 1887 went to Washington as representative from the Sixth Massachusetts district. In 1893 he donned the senatorial toga, and he has long been a fixture in the senate. Senator Lodge is said to be the most learned man in the senate, and it is certain that no other member can boast of the authorship of so many books.

CLOTILDE.

Clotilde, the unfortunate queen of the Goths, was the daughter of Clovis and Clotilde of France. She married Amalaric, who was an Arrian, while she was a pious Catholic. She was so persecuted by her subjects for her faith that her life was in danger, while her husband united with her foes in abusing her. She at last applied to her three brothers, who then governed the divided kingdom of the Franks, sending to Chilperic, King of Paris, her oldest brother, a handkerchief saturated with the blood drawn from her by the blows of her barbarous husband. Her brothers took up arms to revenge her, and in this bloody war the cruel Amalaric was slain. Clotilde returned to her native France, and died soon after, about 488.

Tradition Helps Nation

In the great events meeting the existence of a people, the will of the dead powerfully sustains the will of the living. Nations which have not enough of the dead to defend them, make a feeble resistance. This was the case with Russia toward the end of the great war.—G. Le Bon in Les Incertitudes de l'Heure Presente.

Penalized

"Why do you always use 'whilst' in place of 'while'?" asked the city editor of the new reporter.

"Because I think it's a nicer word," "All right," said the editor. "I think you'd better work in the janitorial department for a whilst."—Boston Transcript.

Neckwear an Aid to Milady's Suit

Decoration Will Serve in Different Ways to Beautify Garments.

Two types of neckwear accompany the spring clothes and they represent diametrically divergent influences, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. There are the severe and mannish effects that emphasize the trim tailleur and there are the frilly feminine affairs that counteract the O'Rosen inspired rigidity of style.

In the first classification fall all the stiff organdie and plain-edged linen sets that suggest outdoor life. There are innumerable vestees with edges bound in bright colored material—orange, Chinese red, or the new soft blues—with little square buttons to match. One model shows a double collar, the under one of plain white organdie edged with blue and the upper being of white linen with a blue crossbar stitch. Then there is a white vestee of lawn with a narrow front panel edged with salmon pink and pink flowers worked on the round collar. Cuffs are to be found with many of these sets, which are appropriate for either the tailored suit or the sweater and plaided skirt.

A deep café-au-lait color characterizes many of the lace sets. And there is no limit to the ingenious combinations of contrasting laces. A novelty is an oblong panel attached to a round collar which may be worn either with a suit, the sides being tucked away from view, or on a frock, the whole panel showing the color of the dress through its delicate texture.

A similar line of division runs through the new high-collared models which may be completely feminine or severely masculine. On the one side there is the rigid stock of pique or linen and on the other a high collar of lace supporting a jabot. Jabots are much in evidence everywhere, as are buttons and many other details of finishing, such as faceting and tiny ruffles. All of which combine to make the spring neckwear unusually effective.

Variety of Neckwear to Beautify Her Frock

The feature of neckwear has developed into an enormous industry. White things, collars and cuffs, chemisettes, tuckers, ruffling by the yard, all alluring because of their dainty freshness and flattery, have been augmented by an enormous assortment of novelties of another and wholly different sort.

The colored needlework that came in when our interest in foreign folk was quickened is now reproduced in neckwear. Round collars, square and bateau-shaped collars, usually with cuffs to match, embroidered in peasant design and color, are sold in sets. Waistcoats of tailored cottons and linens and underblouses of crepe de chine, muslin or lace are to be had for the tailored suits, and millions of yards of figured georgette in many colors and new patterns finely plaited are sold for fichus and neck frills on the popular one-piece frocks.

Fancy Hatpins Still Have Chance to Serve

Ever so long ago, it seems, hatpins were intended to serve a single purpose, that being to pin the hat to the hair so it would not blow off. After they came to be a real fashion note, something to be reckoned as ornamental as well as serviceable, hatpins grew into artistic achievements. The fashion of bobbing the hair made the hatpin more or less a drug on the market. But lately some unique and very pretty pins are shown, and are apparently in demand among those whose locks are still attached to their natural Moorings. Some of the new pins have beautifully jeweled tops. Others are done in enamel or heavily chased gold.

A Great Neighborhood

My son had lived in quiet surroundings and played a great deal with little girls. We moved into a new neighborhood, made up of real boys of all ages. One day son rushed into the house and exclaimed: "Oh, mother! This is the greatest neighborhood. We just fuss and fight all the time."

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, May 9.—Harriet Loomis was given a surprise party Tuesday evening. All had a good time. After games and music refreshments were served.

A. Woolheater has moved into his new home in Bungalow Villa. Mrs. Brokema will move into the house vacated by him and which is near J. Elvey's, who owns the house.

The Girls' Sewing Class will meet Monday evening, May 12, with Harriet Loomis.

The vanderbilt given by local talent, K. of P., and for the benefit of the lodge, in the Community Hall at Chester Tuesday evening was very largely attended and much enjoyed. The special numbers in singing were enjoyed also.

At the annual school meeting Tuesday evening Harvey Clancy was elected trustee, A. J. Longyear treasurer and T. J. McGrath clerk. As there are so few pupils there was no need having three teachers. This was discussed and the sentiment in the majority was for two teachers. A letter was read regarding the rural organization being formed to protect the little red school house, but no action was taken as the outline of the movement, etc., was not at hand. A vote of thanks was given to H. Boice for his services of being trustee for years.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Clancy and little son, Mrs. T. Clancy and Miss Anna spent Wednesday in Kingston.

The Rebekah Lodge will serve a supper Wednesday evening, May 11. The proceeds for regalia.

All miss Mrs. M. Hinson as she is not able get to be around. She always carried a cheer with her. All trust it will not be long before she will be out.

Mrs. Neuman is spending some time with her father, James McGrath. Mr. and Mrs. J. Elvey, Mrs. Connelly and E. Neal have returned from St. Petersburg, Florida, where they spent three months. All are looking well and improved in health. Mr. Elvey purchased a nice furnished bungalow and some grounds with it, in the vicinity of St. Petersburg.

For village improvement some stand should be taken regarding a dumping ground. The tin can and rubbish effects nearly everyone and a back yard with tin cans in heap or barrels of them is not a slightly atmosphere, besides the garden ground it takes. There is no available dumping spot. Why not have some one to select a place off the road and away from the streams and then by concerted action of the many have some one haul this kind of rubbish to this spot. The gathering being taken from the several places desiring to dispose of this back yard waste?

A. Whipple has placed a fine enclosed railing around the porch, which makes a splendid improvement. The Stony Clove R. R. will come a little back to normal May 12, when another train will be added. One train has been running to carry the mail.

The M. F. Whitney Hose Company held its annual meeting Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Edward Keen, foreman; Lewis Gosson, assistant foreman; P. D. Leming, secretary; Frank Lord, treasurer. The following appointments were then made by the new foreman, E. Keen: C. Simpson, H. Breithaupt, H. Boice, trustees; D. R. Hinson, W. A. Smith, K. Enlist, hose couplers; James Simpson, C. Simpson, hydrant men; A. Hommel, Dan Enlist, John Galley, H. Breithaupt, nozzlemen. The following members were also appointed as finance committee to audit the books: C. Simpson, P. D. Leming, Lewis Keen. A general discussion then took place, emphasizing the necessity of attending meetings, etc. A drive will be made to secure new members within the next few weeks and it is hoped the company will receive the cooperation of all. The meeting was then adjourned and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Do Schools Breed Molluscoides?

Dr. James Sullivan Criticizes System by Which Schools and Parents Encourage Boys and Girls to "Easy" Things.

On Saturday the School Women's Club of the Hudson Valley held its semi-annual meeting and luncheon at the Kingston high school. There was an important business session called at 10:30 o'clock, which was followed by a luncheon served at the high school at half past twelve o'clock. At half-past one o'clock there was a public meeting held in the auditorium, the speaker for the afternoon being Dr. James Sullivan, assistant commissioner of secondary education of New York state.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Rose Witter of the high school faculty, chairman of the Kingston branch of the School Women's Club, who said that on several occasions it had been her privilege to visit the Boys' High School of Brooklyn, of which Dr. Sullivan was the principal. On none of these visits did she have the good fortune to meet Dr. Sullivan though she exceedingly admired the work being done in his school and quite despairing of ever attaining such results herself. Only recently had she heard Dr. Sullivan speak, and she was so impressed with his address that it was immediately her hope that the school women of the Hudson valley might have the pleasure and profit of hearing him also. Her hope was being fulfilled as she introduced Dr. James Sullivan.

Dr. Sullivan said he had chosen as his subject, "Have the Schools Lived up to Their Promises to the Community?" and he would take up the subject as little confidential talks together among themselves.

In 1914 the world war broke out. 44 years after the great European conflagration which we know as the Franco-Prussian war. This war of 1870 was the result of the complete perversion of a people by a system of education forced upon them by a royal family. People of a tender age at that time were so educated that the possibilities of a world war were the normal outcome of their education. The speaker had heard no one deny the feasibility of an educational machine grinding out people of a certain moral slant or ideal. Men and women, as teachers, can take the young and mold them into better men or women or if they do not, there is no value in their educational system which is powerless to create out of bad environment or undesirable ancestry men and women who are better and more satisfactory human beings.

According to Dr. Sullivan the young people of today know more things and know them well than did the young people of our youth. The job of giving out to school children pure information has been well done. But along other lines, the speaker thought the progress had not been so marked or so successful. He emphatically decried that system of pedagogy that we call "soft" pedagogy. The men and women who have amounted to something in the world have not been the objectives of any soft pedagogy; they have been educated by hard teaching and study, and those men and women who were so educated from 1870 to 1890 are now the grand-parents and parents of the little children of today. Since their day, or rather today, in this country the number of divorces and of homicides have greatly increased and there has been an enormous increase in the use of tobacco in spite of the teaching of its harmful effects in the schools.

There must be something lacking somewhere if we are producing a race of people lacking in backbone, in the power of resistance to evil; in the exercise of temperance in all things. This condition, Dr. Sullivan blamed in large part upon that now and imported pedagogy which would not insist upon a child doing what he or she did not want to do, which would not have the child act only according as his or her physical impulses would dictate, lest he or she become what Roosevelt would have called a "Molluscoid." This form of pedagogy taught that if a child desired to do a certain thing, it is wrong to insist upon the exercise of any mental restraint of its physical impulses. Such pedagogy will never, according to the speaker, build character, and teachers are in large measure responsible for true education resulting in restraint and temperance. President Eliot of Harvard had no regard for what he called "A Guide to Learning to Play," which was imported from Germany, and which while it might do for plegmatic German children was a decided menace to volatile American children.

Nor did Dr. Sullivan believe in the kind of teaching that would not use the word "task," and considered it wrong to say to a child "It is your duty to do it." He believed that if the child is to have the benefits of civilization it must accept some of the disagreeable features of self-control. He would rather say to the child, "I do not care what you think, it is your duty to do so and so, and you will have to do so and so, and he would also have the boy or girl taught that education is not an easy but a difficult thing to gain, and therefore is worth working very hard for. But by "education" he would mean something more than the giving of a child instruction that would result simply in an accumulation of information.

Nor can we blame the spirit of the times for this lax educational system, for education is what makes the spirit of the times. The teacher is responsible for creating a right spirit of the times, and should be proud of that responsibility, rather than shrink it.

Dr. Sullivan had been visited in his office by three principals from schools in different parts of the state, all of whom complained that fifty per cent of their pupils would come to school unprepared as to their lessons. They did not want to find fault, but asked for some remedy of the appalling condition. The speaker advocated sharp methods. First, he advised the calling together of the parents of the pupils and making it plain to them that the children could have to do their home work and in order to do that home work they would have to refrain from social obligations in the middle of the week. The teachers would find that parents instead of resenting such suggestions would be glad of the support of the teachers in their endeavor to do the very thing desired, and which they were finding difficult because they did not have the moral support of the teachers. And then he would make it equally plain to the pupils that if they did not do their home work at home they would be required to remain and do it in school. At first the teachers might not like the idea of the extra school work, but with increasing efficiency on the part of the pupils they would soon see the advantage of the plan, and almost without exception, at the end of six months and marked improvement in the preparation of lessons would more than repay them, while a right habit would have been formed that would have a lasting effect for good. It had been the speaker's experience that after such a period of discipline, if pupils, because of some emergency were unable to prepare their home work, they would of their own accord go to the teacher before the recitation period and explain the situation. That was infinitely better than explanations and excuses after the failure to give a prepared recitation.

In closing, Dr. Sullivan said that if the teacher is to make good with the community, he or she must be able to teach men and women of character, not merely repositories of accumulated information, and to do this the teacher must impress upon the student that to gain success in life, whether spiritual, economic or technical, one must work hard and earnestly.

After giving Dr. Sullivan, who had to leave on an early train, a rising vote of thanks, Mrs. Witter announced that Mr. Clum would favor those present with a vocal solo. Mr. Clum has a delightful baritone voice and sings well and also possesses an engaging personality, so he delighted his audience when he sang what he had intended as an encore number, first, because it fitted in so well after Dr. Sullivan's fine address. He sang a song entitled "Somebody Said I Couldn't Be Done" by Robert Cox, and then being warmly applauded he sang two other songs by Mr. Cox, "I Know a Trail" and, perhaps best of all, "To Build Is Joy."

Before the close of the conference, Mrs. Witter, in behalf of the School Women's Club, extended to Mrs. Myron J. Michael, one of the charter members of the club, and always one who had been deeply interested in its efforts, through Dr. Michael, the greetings of all present. Also the hope that she might soon be quite restored to health was expressed. Dr. Michael was deeply touched and said he would be most happy to convey the message to Mrs. Michael, from whom he had just come to extend her best wishes to those present, and he furthermore brought the good news that the invalid was slowly recovering and was able to take a short auto ride after school hours with him each day, which made a very happy ending of the day.

Teachers Met At Phoenicia

Fourth Supervisory District Teachers Listen to Addresses by New Paltz Normal Teachers—Preliminary Examination Program.

The teachers of the Fourth Supervisory District met at Phoenicia on Thursday and Friday, May 1 and 2 for a conference.

Mr. Matteson, head of the mathematics department at New Paltz Normal, was the first speaker on Thursday morning. Mr. Matteson gave every one present a cordial invitation to the pageant to be given at New Paltz in June. He announced that the summer school would open on June 30. The bulk of the work will be taken from the third year work of the normal course and credit will be given toward resident work.

Mr. Matteson's morning talk was on primary arithmetic. He said some things in arithmetic are not new; that we still add and multiply. Arithmetic is something like a rummage sale. There are some articles of value and some that are worthless. We are gradually eliminating the worthless and the unfit. Your knowledge of arithmetic is made up of a great many little abilities. The basis of all number work is counting.

Use real objects, if possible in teaching fractions and elementary numbers. Objects should be dropped as soon as the meaning has been taught. The tendency at present in good arithmetic teaching is toward the inductive method.

In the afternoon Miss Fischer of the Home Bureau talked on junior project work. At present there are three clubs organized in the county. Special emphasis is laid on home-making and studies in nutritive diets.

Following Miss Fischer, Mr. Matteson gave a talk on upper grade arithmetic with special emphasis on the regents' work. The regents' examination is the criterion by which the work of the teacher is judged.

In teaching arithmetic, have the pupils do the most of the work. Give large amounts of examples but not of too great difficulty. Have frequent reviews. Emphasize the interrelation of operations in arithmetic. There are five points to emphasize in drill work: 1. plenty of easy problems, 2. relate the work to previous knowledge, 3. have frequent reviews, 4. the language of the problem and experience of the pupil, 5. have much variety in the forms of the problems presented.

Draw on the every day experience of the pupil when teaching new work as promissory notes and bank discount. As before, give plenty of problems of not too great difficulty.

The remainder of the afternoon session was given up to discussion of administration work and routine matters.

The speakers for Friday were: Miss Gettrude J. Nichols of the geography department at New Paltz and Bruce Bennett, head of the English department at New Paltz.

Miss Nichols gave many important suggestions in the teaching of geography. One principal effect in the teaching of geography is failing to make intelligent assignments and not giving enough time to the assignment. She also gave some important suggestions concerning project work.

Miss Nichols was followed by Mr. Bennett who is always a very welcome speaker at these meetings. He emphasized the importance of oral English in business life. Oral English is not a luxury, but a necessity.

In the afternoon Miss Nichols talked on advanced geography and Mr. Bennett on English. Mr. Bennett at the close of his talk gave a very effective reading of "The Highwayman" by Alfred Noyes.

The regents' preliminary examinations will be held the week of June 16-20 at Phoenicia, Boiceville, Pine Hill and Woodstock. The examination for teachers will be given at Phoenicia only. The program follows:

Monday a. m.—Elementary English.
Tuesday a. m.—Arithmetic.
Tuesday p. m.—Spelling.
Wednesday a. m.—Geography.
Wednesday p. m.—United States History.

Court Affirms Howard Order

Continued Affirmance of Troy Jurist's Action in Setting Aside $155,000 Award in Electric Company Case.

The appellate division of the supreme court for the third department last week handed down a decision unanimously affirming, without opinion, the order of Judge Howard setting aside the award of $155,000, which was made by Schoharie Reservoir Commission No. 2 to the Tri-County Light & Power Co. of Stamford for land and power plant, etc., acquired by the city of New York for the Gilboa reservoir.

The trial of the claim of the Tri-County Light & Power Company attracted wide attention, and some of the most celebrated engineers in the United States were called as witnesses. Testimony on the claim was first given in June, 1921, and the report of the commissioners, making an award of $155,000, was filed August 15, 1922. The commissioners also recommended allowances of $2,000 as counsel fees and $5,452.46 for expenses and disbursements.

Judge John P. Grant of Stamford organized the Tri-County Light & Power Company and is the principal stockholder. The company was organized in 1912 with Judge Grant as president, and he conveyed to the corporation the real estate on which development of the company's electric power plant was conducted.

The company filed a claim for $500,000 for the value of its real estate, known as parcel No. 85 in the Schoharie Reservoir and Shandaken Tunnel section of lands acquired by the city of New York, and some of the witnesses examined on behalf of the light and power company testified that the value of the land, power station, equipment, etc., was $1,000,000.

The land itself comprised 7,472 acres, on which the light and power company constructed a concrete dam five feet and two inches in height; head gates, racks, appurtenances, a six inch steel flume surrounded by concrete; a power house in which a three hundred horse power wheel, generator, switchboard, transformers and other necessary equipment were installed, etc. The water wheel, the machinery in the plant and appurtenances were not taken by the city, and the city did not take 11 miles of transmission line between Gilboa and Stamford, or the distribution line within the village of Grand Gorge.

Testimony in the case showed that Judge Grant in 1912 purchased the property for $5,000. In the stream bed of the property thus acquired by him, which he subsequently transferred to the company, was a natural drop of the bedrock of twenty feet in less than one hundred feet downstream, which made development of the hydro-electric power easy of accomplishment after the power house had been built and machinery installed. Then the company began to furnish electric current to the village of Stamford and the village of Grand Gorge and it was prepared, according to testimony before the commissioners, to furnish electric current to other villages and to other neighboring companies, and to develop the power-producing capabilities to a greater extent.

Testimony on the trial showed that the total cost of the entire plant to the Tri-County Company was $44,760.75, but that the total cost of the property actually taken by the city of New York, including the land and water power, was $24,731.

One of the engineering witnesses examined on behalf of the company testified that with 1,000 horse power addition to the existing hydro plant, there was capable of being developed primary and steam power to the amount of 2,483,285 kilowatt hours, and assuming the sale of the primary, secondary and tertiary power at prices he mentioned, would make total annual receipts of $67,518. Operating expenses, under his proposed development, would amount to $22,094, giving net earnings of $45,534, which capitalized at five per cent amounted to $911,680, from which he deducted the cost of the plant, amounting to $142,336, leaving the value of the water rights $769,344.

A large customer of the Tri-County Light & Power Company was the West Branch Light & Power Company, which operated in Stamford, whose stockholders and officers were the same as those of the Tri-County Company; and another large customer was the Deagon Contracting Company, which began the construction of the Shandaken tunnel, and that company's successors. With regard to the West Branch Company, the city of New York contended that the tremendous losses of power shown by the books of the West Branch Company never occurred in fact, and that so far as the Deagon Company and its successors were concerned, the city should not be compelled to pay for the loss of business which had been temporarily delayed by the acts of the city.

Judge Howard, at special term of the supreme court, set aside the commissioners' award of $155,000 to the Tri-County Company on the ground that the commission had adopted an erroneous theory in measuring damages, which led them to an erroneous conclusion, and to an excessive award. Judge Howard said he recognized the danger, pointed out by counsel for the Tri-County Company, that another commission, if appointed, might regard itself as created for the distinct and sole purpose of reducing the award, but would endeavor to avoid the danger as far as possible in what he should say.

Judge Howard then pointed out that the commission had disregarded the condition and value of the property taken; that they dealt largely with a supposititious property, assuming that a new modern 1,500 horse power hydro-electric plant could be built on the site of the claimant and that such a plant would produce an annual revenue of $17,500, which they had capitalized at 12 1/2 per cent and then added $15,000 for certain buildings and other developments. It was clearly apparent, he said, that the hypothetical power plant, the plant which never existed at all, and which, consequently was not taken by the city, was the chief item of damage going to make up the total award, the tangible existent property, the real thing taken, receiving scanty value in compiling the $155,000. The market value of the property as it existed when taken, not its value after a new plant had been constructed, should have been the controlling principle to guide the commissioners, and in appraising the value of the hypothetical plant, as well as the value of the property itself, he said, the commissioners listened too much to evidence of value as distinguished from the market value; it is the value of the property taken, not its output, that constitutes the measure of damages.

Judge Howard said he considered the damages excessive, although, perhaps, not shockingly so. If the commission had arrived at a correct figure, or an approximately correct one, even by an erroneous process, their determination ought not to be disturbed, and he should not feel that he ought to set aside the award except that the opinion written by the commission clearly revealed to him that the commission was led to an erroneous conclusion, that is to an excessive award, by an erroneous theory. From personal inspection of the property, Judge Howard said he was greatly impressed with the site and the water power and was convinced that the damage done to the claimant was substantial and irreparable. It was because the commission had placed a value upon something in addition to the property taken, that is, placed it upon the hypothetical plant, and added this value to the value of the property taken, that he considered the award excessive.

The Tri-County Company appealed to the appellate division from the order of Judge Howard setting aside the $155,000 award, and the case was argued before the judges of that court some time ago. Several days ago a decision was handed down by the appellate division unanimously sustaining the order of Judge Howard. The appellate division did not write any opinion in the case, evidently adopting that of Judge How-

WHAT KINGSTON BUILDS— BUILDS KINGSTON!

MODERN HOTELS DO PAY

Profits from any business enterprise depend largely upon management. Returns from any hotel depend largely upon the operation of that hotel. Realizing the great importance of management the Hotel Executive Committee has obtained a proposal from the American Hotels Corporation, a subsidiary of the United Hotels Company of America, which is one of the largest and most successful of the chain operating companies in North America, to operate Kingston's new hotel on a profit sharing basis which should net the local stockholders at least 6%. In fact, the operating company cannot make and profit for itself unless the local owners of the stock also get a dividend on their common stock in addition to the dividend on their Preferred Stock. It is believed that this proposal from the American Hotels Corporation is of great value to the City of Kingston in that it practically guarantees the efficient management of our new hotel and makes dividends on the stock more certain.

Penn Harris itself now being doubled in size, paid consecutive dividends. Satisfactory investment. Makes Harrisburg better known as center. Traveling men gravitate to city which has best accommodations and when they cannot get into new hotel take old one so that all hotel business has profited, splendid argument for conventions. Increasing number of tourists using city hotels."

"A city is known by the hotels it keeps. A large percentage of the public has its contact with a community through the hotels. The Ten Eyck and Wellington, Albany's latest modern hotels have both always paid substantial dividends on stock to the best of our knowledge and from reports made to us. The Ten Eyck so successful that it opened big addition three years ago and Wellington recently finished addition duplicating its capacity and will start in a few weeks still another addition. New hotels have increased business of all hotels and have greatly benefited the city in all business lines through advertising city's facilities and establishing national reputation for hospitality. Hotels were financed by private subscription aided by sales of stock directed by local broker. We figure modern hotels if backed by good service and good management asset to business in general and development of city and of enormous advertising and publicity value. Albany's hotels are a distinct asset to the community making Albany one of the greatest convention and touring cities in the country."

Industrial History Is Shown in Magazine "Ads"

If one would get a bird's-eye view of America's industrial development and, in a sense, her social evolution as well, says the Christian Science Monitor, he can do no better than make a study of the advertising in long-out-of-date magazines.

It is an absorbing bit of research. Go to a library, or into your own dusty files and get copies of two or three of the older leading magazines of the country for the years, say, of 1890, 1893, 1898, 1900, 1906 and 1914. In the advertising columns you may trace the evolution of the American country house and all its furnishings. You will see the bicycle begin and end. There will pass in review before you a whole cycle in the art of printing.

This stage, set for the motorcar, will portray in a complete dramatic entrance, its transformation, its triumphant domination of the scene. Many a gigantic 10,000-candle-power advertising appropriation of today can be seen slowly, cautiously feeling its way, along a twilight road; first

French Now Sending Autograph Telegrams

It is now possible to send autograph telegrams as the result of the perfection of a device for that purpose by M. Hellen, a French inventor. This transmitting machine is being installed in all the French telegraph and post offices.

The sender of a telegraph message writes the telegram on a revolving cylinder, and through a series of novel mechanical devices it is received by the addressee in the original writing of the sender. Over the surface of the paper on the revolving cylinder runs a needle, which in its movements breaks and restores an electric current. Special ink is used in writing this telegram, so that the words are in slight relief above the surface of the paper. The delicate needle strikes the obstacle made by the letters, is jerked upward and interrupts the electric circuit.

These interruptions are all registered at the receiving end, and the result is that by the inverse process the exact pattern of the written telegram is reproduced and this "re-autograph" is delivered to the addressee.

Sea Sand for Fertilizer

In Cornwall, England, sea sand is used very largely for fertilizer and for dressing the soil of the farms. This is because the sea sand from places nearby contains a large percentage of calcium carbonate derived from the shells of the sea mollusks. The winds carry the sand inland for some distance and pile it up in dunes. Its low price makes it preferred now to lime, although for years it was considered valueless.

American Bee Stands Well

Australia has prohibited the importation of adult bees to prevent the introduction of serious diseases of adult bees, such as the Isle of Wight disease. An exception is made of the United States, this being the only country from which importations are permitted.—Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

Some Have Money

"I see the wife of certain governor recently lost a bracelet worth $5,000. He gave the finder a reward of 300 plunks."

"Well, I'm glad to hear one governor has some money. I thought all a governor ever had was a slouch hat and a rusty frock coat."

MEN AND WOMEN IN NEWS SPOTLIGHT.

Above: EARLE B. MAYFIELD & WILLIAM J. BURNS
Below: "PEGGY" WALSH & PRINCE HENRY.

Long under fire in the Senate, William J. Burns, of New York, has resigned as chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice. Prince Henry, third son of the British rulers, is to be made Duke of Edinburgh, according to the London Daily Sketch, thus giving Scotland a royal prince, as the Prince of Wales represents Wales. The Senate committee investigating the fitness of Earle B. Mayfield to sit as Senator from Texas heard ex-Ku Klux Klansmen testify that the Klan forced other candidates to quit the race so Mayfield would be assured of election. Miss Margaret ("Peggy") Walsh eloped from a fashionable New York boarding school a year ago to marry Benjamin E. Tyndale, 24. The impulsive marriage was annulled. Now the beautiful society girl, only 18, has eloped again, this time with Charles M. Warner, 20, nephew of the sugar king. She received parental blessings this time.

Would Re-Name Opals

Though opals are much admired and are commonly worn in this country, there is a popular superstition in Europe and other parts of the world that these beautiful stones are unlucky and bring misfortune to the owner. For that reason South Australia is seeking to exploit this product under another name, "Idolots," after the Greek word for rainbow.

The Successful Men

The men I have seen succeed best in life have been cheerful and hopeful men, who went about their business with a smile on their faces and took the chances and changes of their normal life like men, facing rough and smooth alike, as it came, and so found the truth of the old proverb, that "Good times and bad times and all times pass over"—Kingsley.

Considering the Wife

The insurance agent advised a negro to take out an insurance policy. "You never know what may happen. And there's your wife to consider." "Lawsdy," said the negro, who was thoroughly married, "I ain't any too safe at home as it is, sah!"

K. H. S. Students Hear of Rutgers

Wednesday morning at the high school Mr. Silver, a representative from Rutgers College, spoke at chapel. Mr. Silver told of the advantage of a college education and quoted statistics which conclusively proved the value of such an education. He also spoke of Rutgers College as being one which has put out some of the best men in Kingston, and he hoped that more Kingston students will go to Rutgers from this year's class and from classes in years to come.

Speaker Gillett Is in Senate Race.

FREDERICK H. GILLETT

Following the refusal of Governor Cox, of Massachusetts, to enter the Senatorial race, Congressman Frederick H. Gillett, Speaker of the House of Representatives, has announced that he is a candidate against Senator David L. Walsh, Democrat. Mr. Gillett has represented the Second Massachusetts Congressional District since 1893, his 16 consecutive terms constituting a record of unbroken service not equaled by any other Congressman now in office.

Intrepidity

"There's a man outside who says he wants you to secure him a government position." "A government position, when we're in the midst of all this agitation?" "Yes. He says he's hunting work." "He isn't hunting work. He's looking for trouble."

New York's Gas

The manufactured gas consumed in New York state in one month would fill a two-foot pipe 360,000 miles long.

MOUNT M'KINLEY IS SINKING INTO EARTH

Alaska Residents Say Peak Drops Two Feet Annually.

McKinley Park, Alaska.—Tradition has it that Mount McKinley, the loftiest peak on the American continent, sinks about two feet a year from its official altitude of 20,300.

Residents of the region are convinced this happens. They point out there is an average of four earthquake shocks a year, and contend the mountain settles about six inches with each tremor.

By way of attempted confirmation, they refer to the Aleutian Islands.

According to recent reports from scientific sources, no one can state the location or altitude of many of the small islands in the Aleutian archipelago. One day an island may appear well above water and the next day it may have vanished.

Numerous small islands, including Bogoslov, are reported to have disappeared without a trace. Bogoslov is recalled as the island which suddenly appeared while the crew of the coast guard cutter Bear looked on, in 1906.

For these topographical freaks the blame is placed on Mount Katmai and Pavlof volcanoes, which intermittently send out dense clouds of smoke and flame.

Cyanide Gas Is Used to Rout Rats in Portland

Portland, Ore.—Cyanide gas is routing the enemy in Portland's campaign against rats.

H. S. Speer, commander-in-chief of the hotel and sea forces in the rat campaign, has driven the pests from their chief breeding places, the incinerator dumps and the fills in Duane-way park and Alameda.

William G. Halber, superintendent of garbage disposal, has reported that there was not a rat left in the dump or fills, where four years ago the city expended at one time $300 on poison without effect.

"We must still be on our guard here," says Mr. Speer, "because occasionally a rat jumps from a garbage truck. Householders must learn to keep covers on their garbage cans. And the residents of South Portland must learn not to throw refuse in the gutters."

"We have splendid co-operation from Capt. Jacob Speler, the harbor-master, and from the dock commission. We have worked together to make our terminals rat-proof. An evidence of our effective effort came in our finding sacks of flour in terminal No. 1 untouched by rats after the fourth night in the same location."

"We are responding to a good many requests from residences. We applied the cyanide gas, from the tank which I carry on my back, to one of five rat-holes on a lawn and found the gas puffed out from the four other holes. The owner of the home reported the next week that there had been no further sign of rats on the lawn."

Girl Recovers Following Operation on Her Heart

Baltimore, Md.—An operation on the human heart apparently successful in every way, and in which the organ was actually bared by the surgeon's knife, was described at the meeting of the American Surgical Association here recently by Dr. Elliott C. Cutler of Harvard Medical school, who performed it. He told of having inserted his finger in an orifice in the heart to cure a valvular disease and that the patient is still living, eleven months later, and improved.

Doctor Cutler said that the patient was a fourteen-year-old girl. One of the orifices of her heart was so small that it was impossible for the orion to function. The child was threatened with death because of this situation. The sack in which the heart is enclosed was opened. The organ itself was exposed. While it beat, the delicate operation of opening the orifice was performed. The sack was closed and the patient slowly recovered.

Woman Keeps Record on Top-of-the-World Weather

Seattle, Wash.—Daily weather observations in the land of the midnight sun, as the United States' farthest north weather station, at Point Barrow, Alaska, are made by a woman.

Four or five times a year she sends a report to the outside world by dog team, coast guard cutter or trading schooner.

The forecaster and recorder is Mrs. Mollie Ward Greist, wife of the surgeon in charge of the Presbyterian hospital at Point Barrow. She has been the government's top-of-the-world weather observer since 1920.

Bears 11 Tailless Pups

Silverton, Ore.—Patsy, a spaniel at the Hague kennels, has given birth to 11 hobbled-tail pups. She is herself of the clipped-tail variety. If dogs are to be tailless, why bother with tails in the beginning? Not one of the 11 pups was born with a tail. So far interviews with dog fanciers have not revealed a similar case in dog history.

Goes Blind Through Study

York, Pa.—Hard study to fit him for entrance examination at the West Point military academy caused Frederick Flinckbaum, Jr., to become blind. The young man, who is an infantryman, will recover his sight after a long stay, surgeons predicted.

Happy Bermuda Has No Real Traffic Troubles

There are no traffic police on duty in Bermuda, motor cars being prohibited by law. The police are a conspicuous feature of the landscape, however, with their natty blue uniforms and the distinctive blue and white striped duty band on the left sleeve at the wrist, reminding one of the metropolitan police in London.

Those who go to Bermuda to rest usually pass the time driving round to the various sights of the islands, such as Tom Moore's house, Gibbs hill light-house, Cathedral rocks, the Lenington cave and its stalagmites, or going out to the coral reefs in a tug to be later put off in small glass-bottomed boats from which they can study the sea life below them in water which is perfectly clear, although it may be 30 or 40 feet to the bottom, says a Bermuda letter to the Brooklyn Eagle.

Every Wednesday there is a reception and 5 o'clock tea at the governor's house, to which all visitors to the islands are welcome and the military band is on duty at some place or other every day. One of the favorite resorts is Elbow beach, on the south shore, where there is only one narrow strip of coral reef between the bathers and the broad Atlantic, and waves come rolling in sometimes 20 feet high.

On account of the long narrow shape of the island the distances are usually inconvenient. For example, it is six miles from the principal hotels to the most popular golf links, and what with transportation, greens fees, caddies, luncheons, liquid refreshments and tips, $10 a day will hardly cover the expenses at either of the more popular courses, Riddell's bay and Tucker's island. At St. George, on the other hand, which is two hours' ride by carriage from Hamilton, and where the links are not more than five minutes' walk from the hotel, the greens fees are only $1 a day for four persons.

Little Bell Used by the Japanese Newsboy

Here and there, sometimes inconspicuously mingled with the practices of Westernism, the characteristics of the old, the romantic, the picturesque Japan remain to attract and to enthrall the foreigner. Although the Japanese newspapers are printed in strange fantastic characters, writes a correspondent of the London Times, they help to spread a veneer of the West over the Far East, but when Japan sells its newspapers the thir-ness of the veneer becomes at once apparent.

Here we have no roaring boys rushing through traffic-crowded streets and hawking the latest tidings into the air. A special edition of an evening paper is a gossip, and the blue-clad coolie who sells it on the streets may be eighteen years old or eighty, but his procedure is ever the same. He loops along with his "specials" (the size of half a sheet of newspaper), and for the piercing yell of the London newsboy he substitutes the ringing of a tiny handbell. And, even though there are many bells rung through every hour in every Japanese city, none can be mistaken for that of the gogal man.

The first news of the death of "President Harding and news of the death of Viscount Kato were spread through the capital of Japan by the tinkling of little bells.

Lucky Cat

After baring many things at the seaside resort Mr. Flubdub took up the subject of his own fat headiness in allowing himself to be dragged away from a comfortable home. Apparently this made him think of the family cat.

"Hey, what about the cat? What didja do with the cat?" "The cat is provided for," stated Mrs. Flubdub calmly. "Our neighbor promised to feed it."

"That gave him another helpful thought."

"Well, I hope the cat is getting better board than we are."

Goes to Church

A dollar and a penny note. The penny had a bright, clean face; the dollar was dirty but proud.

"You think you are gold, but you are only cheap brass," said the dollar. The penny replied: "I am what I am and claim to be no more."

The dollar swelled up with pride and said: "I am patriotic. I am trustworthy. I have the emblem of liberty on my bosom, and the United States government has placed these words on me, 'In God We Trust.'"

After a little thought the penny answered: "I grant you all that, but I go to church oftener than you do."

No Black Blossoms

The Department of Agriculture says that there is no flower that has absolutely black blossoms. Certain varieties of pansies are almost black and Scabiosa is very dark.

Wagenen Bills Vetoed

Photograph to The Freeman.
Albany, May 12.—(Special.)—The bills by Assemblyman Simon B. Wagenen of Ulster county are vetoed by the governor of Gov. Smith. The measures disapproved by the executive in this document have been adversely dealt with, points out, because they were deemed unnecessary, were defective, were embraced or are in conflict with bills already signed, were unconstitutional or are for purposes which can be suitably accomplished under general laws, or are objectionable for other reasons.

The two Van Wagenen bills vetoed are:

Confirming the acts and proceedings of the officers of the town of Kingston which were taken subsequent to the enactment of the town law.

Conferring jurisdiction on the state court of claims to audit and determine the claim of James M. Hamilton & Company against the state for the termination of a highway contract by the state highway commission.

HOWARD KEAVIN

Howard Keavin, 29 years old, is being sought all over America after his sensational escape from the Ontario County Jail, Canandaigua, N. Y., where he was held on the charge of assassinating Policeman James McDonnell, of Geneva, N. Y. Keavin was visited in the jail by his wife and her sister, Mrs. Loretta Maloney. Mrs. Keavin thrust two pistols in the face of Deputy Sheriff Charles Smith, and Keavin drew another. He and his wife fled, but the sister fainting and was captured.

Poisonous Snakes Are Pets of Zoo Keeper

At Port Elizabeth, South Africa, attached to the natural history museum is a large "snake garden," where poisonous reptiles live in perfect freedom, among their natural surroundings, says the New York World. The garden is, of course, cut off from the rest of the world by a concrete wall.

The keeper is a negro who has worked in the snake garden from the days of his childhood and has actually succeeded in building up a real friendship with his charges. Protected only by cauntlet gloves and leather aprons, with his other clothing merely the regulation uniform of the museum, he fearlessly enters the lair and captures and freely handles his pets.

When one considers that the majority of the snakes in the garden are of the most deadly varieties—the African cobra, the puff-adder and the fer-de-mouche among others—one would think twice before offering to swap jobs with the keeper of the reptile house.

Poisonous snakes are popularly believed to be untamable, but the negro keeper at Port Elizabeth seems to prove that, if not actually affectionate, they can be persuaded by kindness to tolerate human companionship.

The snakes in the Port Elizabeth garden are not used for display purposes only. Their venom, extracted, is used in the preparation of serums and antidotes for snake-bite.

Auto Driving Making Pigeon-Toed People

As a result of continual automobile driving, Americans are becoming pigeon-toed, according to the statement of Dr. Carl Hunt of New York city, after extensive research to determine the cause of a marked tendency to "toe in" on the part of a large percentage of the population in large cities. Complaints of pains in the right foot, which are becoming common, also are attributed by him to the same cause.

"Automobile drivers are developing a new form of foot trouble that in many cases becomes actual deformity," says Dr. Hunt. "Ever since the advent of the foot accelerator, my car-driving patients, in ever increasing numbers, are complaining of pains in the outer side of the middle third of the right foot, particularly when walking. In most cases I have found that with correction of the position of the foot on the accelerator, manual manipulation, simple exercises, and properly fitting shoes, the trouble has disappeared."—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Esquimo Music

Radio music consists chiefly of songs, chants and melodies. Many of these possess considerable musical value. Although the tunes to which they are sung are crude they can be made to keynotes. The melodies are said to be very pleasing and a number of them have been published with corresponding music.

"Pep" Misplaced In "Love Nest"

Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., May 12.—Daniel T. Barry, recently appointed assistant chief of police by Mayor William S. "Pep" to clean up the city and put me "pep and discipline" in the police force, today was suspended.

Barry was charged with neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer, because of several alleged visits to the Love Nest, a notorious resort on the outskirts of the city.

When he was advanced from the rank of ordinary patrolman to assistant chief Barry was hailed as a second General Butler. It was reported he would try to do for Albany what General Butler is trying to do for Philadelphia, stop law breaking.

Suspended along with Barry were Detectives George Card and John W. McElveney. It was alleged they accompanied Barry to the Love Nest.

Barry was suspended by Chief of Police Frank Basch at the request of Commissioner of Public Safety James Keith.

"We intend to make a thorough investigation of Barry's alleged visits to the Love Nest," Commissioner Keith said.

Sergeant David Smull has been appointed acting assistant chief of police in place of Barry.

Barry claims he was at the Love Nest on "field duty."

Just when Albanians were expecting to hear some sensational riddle being conducted by Barry they learned that he had been suspended.

When appointed assistant chief, Barry adopted some of the tactics employed by General Butler. He paid sudden and unexpected visits to outlying precincts at all hours of the night and kept close watch to see that policemen remained on their beats. He was organizing a new vice squad and was planning to augment the motorcycle patrol force in an effort to cut down automobile thefts.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, May 12.—The stock market opening weak today. The large decrease in unfilled orders reported by the United States Steel Corporation combined with the unfavorable outcome of the French elections caused heavy selling throughout, losses ranging from a fraction to about 2 points.
Money conditions were easy; call money renewing and ruling at 3 1/2 per cent.
Foreign exchanges were unsettled. Cotton turned strong after early heaviness.

Rain Prevents Sunday Games

The rain of Sunday morning put the Fair Grounds in bad condition and the Colonial-Kennedy All Star game was called off. On next Sunday afternoon the strong D. and H. Generals will be the attraction. The Generals have one game the best of the local team, winning here in the opening contest.

The rain also stopped the Poughkeepsie-Westinghouse team of New York game scheduled for Sunday at Poughkeepsie.

The Studebaker-Kelly All Star game scheduled for Sunday was postponed on account of rain. The condition of the field at East Kingston will be in poor shape for the next couple of days. The game scheduled for Tuesday evening with the Columbia White Sox will be played at East Kingston on Thursday evening.

The K. of C. Wilbur game at the Wilbur diamond was also postponed yesterday. Wet grounds also caused the postponement of the game between the Chevrolets and the New Palts at New Palts Saturday afternoons.

TAGGING ALL THE MAJOR LEAGUE BASES.

The Giants again finished second to the Cardinals, 3 to 2. Stuart having the edge on Geary in a pitchers' vendetta. Cooney, the new Cardinal shortstop, doubled in the fourth, scoring Freigan with what proved to be the winning run.

Rueher was given the rough dry treatment by the Cubs for a matter of fifteen hits, the Dodgers losing, 5 to 4.

Habit being stronger than desire, the Athletics romped off with their eleventh straight defeat, the Cleveland Indians being the beneficiaries. Score 8 to 5. It was Coveleskie's infant victory of the season.

Carlson shut out the Cincinnati Reds, 2 to 0, the Phillies getting to Luque for successive tallies in the sixth and seventh.

D. & H. GENERALS WIN 16 INNING CONTEST.

It took the D. & H. Generals sixteen innings to defeat the 195th Infantry blue at Troy Sunday afternoon at D. & H. Park in Watervliet, the score being 2 to 1. The Generals were forced to play overtime because of the good twisting of "Lefty" Thormahlen, Albany Eastern League pitcher, who was on the mound for the Troy soldiers. Manell also hurled effective ball, letting the Trojans down with one hit. The score:
